

Workshop Overview

Increased commercial property costs, technological improvements, improved connectivity and a drive for more flexible working is forcing organisations to adopt home working and remote working arrangements. This strategy results in a physical distance between managers and their teams and can raise barriers to communication and leadership challenges which can affect team spirit, motivation and performance.

Benefits

This two-day workshop will equip you with tips, tools and approaches proven to be effective when managing teams remotely. You will learn how to empower team members and provide adequate amounts of support and access to the practical tools to increase morale and lead your team to success.
